Awarded

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS.

For extraordinary heroism in action near Buzancy, France, Nov. 3, 1918. In the face of terrific enemy artillery and machine-gun fire Lieutenant-Colonel Beere, accompanied by another officer, voluntarily made his way forward and beyond the advanced Infantry lines for a distance of several hundred yards. Upon reaching the advanced Infantry lines they separated, but first made plans so that the information obtained might be carried back by either officer. After a very thorough reconnaissance they located the enemy positions and strong points which were holding up the advance. They then successfully returned to our lines and communicated the information to the nearest artillery, which concentrated fire upon the critical points and silenced the enemy resistance, thereby permitting the Infantry to resume the advance.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS.

"For extraordinary heroism in action June 28—July 3, 1919, while serving as assistant chief of staff, G-2, American Expeditionary Forces, Siberia. On July 2, 1919, after the capture, by American troops of Novitskaya, an American platoon detailed to clear hostile patrols from a commanding ridge was halted by enemy enfilading fire, seriously wounding the members of the patrol. Colonel Eichelberger, without regard to his own safety and armed with a rifle, voluntarily covered the withdrawal of the platoon. On June 28, at the imminent danger of his own life, he entered the partisan lines and effected the release of one American officer and three enlisted men in exchange for a Russian prisoner. On July 3 an American column being fired upon when debouching from a mountain pass, Colonel Eichelberger voluntarily assisted in establishing the firing line, prevented confusion, and, by his total disregard for his own safety, raised the morale of the American forces to a high pitch."

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL.

"For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services, as assistant chief of staff, G-2, with the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia. He organized and directed the intelligence service of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia in a most able manner and under most trying circumstances. By his keen foresight, discriminating judgment, and brilliant professional attainments, exercised through his efficiently established organization, he was able to keep his commanding general well and fully informed at all times. His tireless energy and his keen insight into local conditions gave him a masterful grasp of the situation, which contributed materially to the success of the forces in Siberia. He rendered most conspicuous services of inestimable value to the Government in a position of great responsibility."

Commendation for heroic conduct.

“For heroic conduct at Picatinny Arsenal, Dover, New Jersey, May 28, 1925. Major Miles, with utter disregard for personal safety, entered a burning building containing loaded bombs and explosives, and assisted in removing an injured civilian employee. Immediately after the rescue the building was completely demolished by the detonation of burning explosives. Major Miles' conduct at this time is deserving of commendation and reflects great credit upon himself and the Army of which he is a member.”
